- A brief description of your testing strategy. How did you determine that your program is correct? What sorts of files and scenarios did you check?

To test our programs file reading/writing functionality, we ran it on a number of different files with different sets of strings and differing widths. In addition, we also input nonexistent files and non regular files. To test the directory functionality, we tested it on directories containing regular files, files that began with “wrap.”, and files with subdirectories.
